The Live Leaderboard that creates the excitement of The Open or The Masters for amateur tournaments & competitions

Golf events can be extended beyond the tournament participants to their friends, family and colleagues

GolfAppLive increases the excitement of a tournament or competition to the participants by providing a live leaderboard. It also extends the whole experience beyond those playing in it. Now non-participants, friends, family, colleagues and co-workers can be invited to join in the event underway at the club. GolfAppLive is designed for clubs, associations, societies, companies, charities and educational bodies organizing golf competitions or tournaments to capture players' scores around the course on smart phones or tablets so that a "live" leaderboard can be provided - on the smart phone or tablet and back in the clubhouse on big TV screens. It's simple for competition organizers and participants to use irrespective of their technical experience. Instant results can be linked to websites, social media sites and email. Organizers can email results and statistics to participants so that a record of their experience on the course can be retained.

More Benefits to Tournament or Competition Organizers & Sponsors

- Golf events can be extended beyond the tournament participants to their friends, family and colleagues who have Internet connectivity.
- Potential participants who can't attend the event can still see how the tournament or competition is progressing provided the organizers enable this capability.
- Up to date results can be linked to websites, social media sites and email making the excitement of the event available to a much broader audience.

The Administration screen provides all the controls necessary to quickly and easily set-up & manage a tournament. The categories need to be completed with information relevant to the competition.

The login screen on a smart phone

- The final results are known immediately to the organizers and can be made available to the participants when appropriate to the event.
- Results and statistics can be emailed to participants so that they can retain a record of their experience on the course.
- The stress involved in organizing and administering a tournament or competition is practically eliminated by providing a framework to set it up, run and finalize the details of the whole event.
- The processes for tournament and competition set-up are streamlined to minimize overall set-up time and tallying the results.
